Toothpaste on Burns ???

A study published in the Journal of the International Society for Burn Injuries notes that applying toothpaste to a burn is a "potentially harmful" treatment that can "worsen the burn." Toothpaste can intensify the burn's pain and increase the risk of infection and scarring.

Toothache due to cold ???

- The last thing you need when you're sick is a toothache.
- Pain in your upper teeth and tenderness around your sinuses may actually be signs of sinusitis, either caused by your cold virus or a bacterial infection.
- The upper back teeth are close to the sinuses, and pain in that area is a common symptom of sinus conditions
- The tell-tale sign is when pain isn't limited to one tooth.

Can You Remove Tartar At Home?

Once plaque [soft and thin layer of dirt built-up on teeth] hardens into tartar, a toothbrush can't remove it, you have to visit the dentist to get it cleaned.

Will antibiotics treat my dental pain??

- When it comes to toothaches, an antibiotic prescription should be avoided unless absolutely necessary.
- Antibiotics will only reduce the infection to a certain level and will not treat the cause of infection hence the infection can come again.
- So if you want a permanent solution to get rid of your infection completely dental treatment is absolutely necessary.

Case of the month..

Daag achhe hai but daaton pe nahi!!

Key to any dental problem is early detection and prevention..

A simple tooth colour filling does wonders in restoring your tooth..
